Did you know that 1 in 1000 children in the UK are living with arthritis right now? Those children and their families are forced to adopt completely different lifestyles, often clouded by treatments, medical appointments, and problems at school. Children and their families are suddenly bombarded with so many things to do, such as managing medicines, liaising between different healthcare professionals, and developing new ways of doing even the simplest of tasks. Yet, these young people and their families are left to cope with these tasks in the dark, often without the necessary support and preparation that they need.

Simon Stones
School of Healthcare, Faculty of Medicine and Health, University of Leeds